Link Encoder Crack X64

Link Encoder is a tiny and portable app that can quickly encode your email address, display name and subject, in addition to links and any type of text. This way, you can encrypt information when sending messages over insecure servers and prevent any outsiders from getting hold of your secrets. Portable tool with a simple GUI Since there's no setup kit, you can copy the downloaded.exe file to a custom folder on the local disk or to a USB flash drive, in order to carry it with you at all times and secure emails sent from a public hotspot. It doesn't create files on the HDD without your permission, need DLLs to run, or change the Windows registry configuration. Concerning the interface, Link Encoder sticks to a normal window with a plain appearance and neatly structured layout, where you can easily get an overview, since all options are visible. Encode emails, links and any text All you have to do is enter your email address, display name and subject, one or more links (one per line), along with any type of text. It's possible to take into account any of these three for the operation. The encrypted code is immediately generated and shown in the bottom part of the window. You can toggle between HTML and source code viewing mode, copy the code to the Clipboard, as well as click the hyperlinked entry in the HTML format to launch your default email client and swiftly send the encrypted message. Evaluation and conclusion It worked smoothly in our tests, without hanging, crashing or indicating errors. It used a low amount of resources, so it didn't hamper PC performance. Thanks to its intuitive interface and options, Link Encoder can be tackled with ease by anyone looking to effortlessly encrypt emails. What's New in the Link Encoder?

This download is the latest version of a small, yet useful utility. It's a small, simple and easy to use application for Windows to encrypt information (email addresses, usernames, passwords, etc.) when sending messages via email. The most popular and effective way of protecting your privacy while you access Web services is SSL/HTTPS. If you have a Web server on your own computer, you can enable SSL to ensure that sensitive information is transmitted through an encrypted channel. It is a non-software product, meaning you don't have to buy an expensive computer or purchase any new hardware to use it. In addition, the application is small in size, making it easy to use and to transfer over the Internet or to store it in portable devices. It works on Windows 7, Vista, XP, 2000 and Windows ME, and requires only an Internet connection to be effective. The purpose of the app is to encrypt the URL of your Web browser, so it's not possible for outsiders to see which Web sites you visit. The app is free and may be used for both personal and business purposes. Screenshots: ===== Instructions: ===== 1. Install the application.
